Safe Haven Infant Protection Act

Anonymous Drop-off for Unwanted Infants in New Jersey, the Safe Haven Infant Protection Act allows an individual to give up an unwanted infant with no fear of arrest or prosecution. No names or records are required. The parents - or someone acting on their behalf - can bring a baby less than 30 days old to any hospital emergency room or police station. The Division of Youth and Family Services will immediately take the child into custady and place the infant in a foster or pre-adoptive home.
